Content

The course aims to implement an application of previous experimental design work, for instance a completed degree project. After identifying within which context and in what way the work is intended to be shown and used, the student contextualises and concretises the work through further design development and work with the presentation format. The main content of the course is, through project work and critical examination, processing of previously experimental design results, conceptualisation, contextualisation, design development and presentation techniques.

Learning Outcomes

On completion of the course, students should be able to:

1. demonstrate a developed ability to independently run and implement design projects through applied processing of experimental design results,
2. critically review, clarify and present their own design work in relation to the roles and contexts of textile/fashion design have and can have in society,
3. demonstrate the ability to identify their need for further knowledge and skills to be able to work independently in working life.
